Reds Keep Pressure on Khe Sanh

By Iver Peterson SAIGON, March 28 (NYT) --

Communist gunners and ground forces are keeping up their pressure on American and South Vietnamese troops stationed near the Lactian border, the allied commands reported today.

Most of the combat activity took place around Khe Sanh, the large allied forward supply and staging base for the recent South Vietnamese operation in Laos.

Three soldiers were killed yes-terday afternoon, the U.S. Army spokesman said, in a battla with an undetermined number of Communist troops 14 miles northeast of Kha Sanh. near the Demilitarized Zone. The enemy escened without leaving a trace of their own losses.

A U.S. Army bivouac in the same area was rocketed late last night, it was announced here, and at least one infantryman was killed and several were wounded. The spokesman refus-ed to detail U.S. losses were reported killed in an attack on their position by American belicopter gunships yesterday afternoon in the hills nine miles southeast of Khe Sanh, according to the communiqué. Such bands of Communist troops have been reported in increasing num-bers since the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos ended last week. leading some allied officers around Khe Sanh to speculate that new fighting is imminent in the area of the DMZ and the Laotian border.

According to Pakistan radio, an official statement in Dacca said that reports of fighting in East Pakistan "as carried by certain foreign news agencies" were "completely without foundation."

It claimed that the army was in "full control of the situation" and that "life is fast returning to

Newsman Sees Use of Cannon, Machineguns

(Continued from Page 1) people are killed," a West Pakis-tani soldier at the airport said in a matter-of-fact tone. Bangia Desh, or Bengal Nation, was the name adopted by leaders of the autonomy movement in East Pakistan

When the military action began on Thursday night, soldiers, shouting victory slogans, set ableze large areas in many parts of Dacca after first shooting into the buildings with auto-matic rifles, machine guns and recolless rifles.

The firing started at about 11 p.m., but at first it was intermittent and it was not clear that a full-scale military operation had

When the foreign newsmen, all of whom were staying at the Intercontinental Hotel tried to gu outside to find out what was ppening, they were forced back in by a heavily reinforced army guard and told they would be shot if they tried to aten out of the building

'Situation Is Bad' Telephone calls to friends and news sources in the city, brought reports of scattered shooting and civilians putting up barricades in the streets. At 12:20 a.m., a call to the home of Shelkh Mujibur Rahman, leader of the independent movement, was answered by a man who said he was an official of the Awami League, Sheikh Mujib's political

"The situation is very bad" he said, and he added that Sheikh Mujib was in his bedroom. The Pakistani radio reported later that Sheikh Mujib was arrested at 1:30 a.m. The report said that five of his colleagues were also arrested.

The firing began to increase in the vicinity of the hotel and at 1 a.m. it seemed to become very heavy all over the city. Artillery opened up, but it was difficult to tell where the shells were landing. Some, however, seemed to be falling in the areas of the university and the East Pakistani Rifles headquarters.

At 1:25 a.m. the phones at the hotel went dead, shut down by order of the military guard outside. The lights on the telegraph office tower went but at about the same time. Heavy automaticweapons fire could be heard in the university area and other

Occasionally there would be an answering report, perhaps from one of the old rifles that some of the militant students were reported to have been collecting. But at no time was there any significant answering fire.

Attack at Shepping Bazzar At about 2:15 a.m. a jeep with a mounted machine mm drove by the front of the hotel turned left on Mymensingh Road and stopped in front of a shopping bazaar, with its gun trained on the second floor windows. A dozen soldiers on foot joined those on the jeep, one group carrying some kind of rocket piece.

From the second floor suddenly came cries of "Bengalis, unite!" and the soldiers opened fire with the machine gun, spraying the building indiscriminately. The soldiers then started moving down an alley adjacent to the bazzar, firing into, and then overturning cars that were blocking the alley. The scene was lit by the soldiers' flashlights, and to the newsmen watching from the 10th floor of the Intercontinental, it was an incredible drama.

As the soldiers were firing down the alley, a group of about 15 or 20 young Bengalis started down Mymensingh Avenue toward them from about 200 yards off. They were shouting in defiance at the soldiers, but they seemed unarmed and their hands appeared empty.

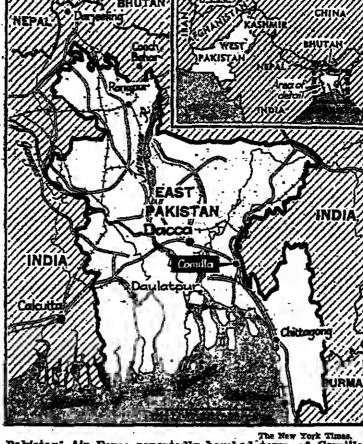

The machine gum on the jeep swung around toward them and opened fire. Soldiers with automatic rifles joined in. The Bengali youths scattered into the shadows on both sides of the road. It was impossible to tell whether any had been wounded or killed.

Newspaper Office Destroyed The soldiers then turned their attention back to the alley. They set a spare-parts garage on fire and then moved on to what was apparently their main objective, the office and press of The Peo-ple, an English-language daily paper that had strongly supported Sheikh Mujib and ridiculed the Shouting in Urdu, the language of West Pakistan, the soldiers warned any persons inside that unless they surrendered they would be shot. There was no answer and no one emerged. The troops then fired a rocket into the building and followed this with small arms fire and machine-gun bursts. Then they set fire to the building and began smashing the press and other equipment.

Maying further along, they set ablaze all the shops and shacks behind the bazoar and soon the flames were climbing high above the two-story building. Then they came back down the alley toward the street, waving their hands in the air and shouting war cries.

The Indian government-owned All India Radio quoted "foreign sources" as saying that fighting was continuing at several places in East Pakistan.

No Casualty Figures There have been no reports on casualties. It was not clear how the "liberation army" was resisting the superior Pakistani military force—army troops fight-ing with tanks and artillary under air force support.

Indian reports said that East Pakistan civilians were fighting with knives, clubs and schniters while the East Pakistan militia and police forces were making use of their limited arms, such as rifles and pistols.

According to one report, the East Pakistan "liberation army" was adopting guerrilla tactics. The civilian population was said to have been denying food and other supplies to the West Pakisteni troops, as well as obstructing their advance by blowing up bridges and railroads. East Pakistan, separated from the western wing of Pakistan by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, is based on the two sections' completely different cultures, languages and physical features, as well as on the fact that the west dominated the east since the Moslem country was carved from the Indian subcontinent in 1947. Three weeks of strikes and other protests against the central government were staged by the Awami League in protest against Gen. Yahya's decision to postpone the March 3 opening of the National Assembly, which the league would have dominated. The assembly was to have drafted a constitution to return Pakistan to civilian rule.

The prime minister made the statement after persistent demands from all sections of the house, including the ruling Congress party, that the statement of Foreign Minister Swaran Singh made earlier yesterday on the situation in East Pakistan "did not reflect the feelings of the people of India."

Mr. Singh had said that India is prepared to 'bring relief to the innocent victims of the conflict in East Pakistan."

Support Urged The foreign minister made the statement after a cabinet meet-ing in response to the demands from parliament urging the government to "extend moral support" to the Bengalis in East Pakistan. Mr. Singh said, "India is once again prepared, in concert with members of the inter-national community or international humanitarian organiza-tions, to bring relief to the innocent victims of the conflict." He said that the "government hopes that even at this stage it will be possible to resume democratic processes leading to the fulfillment of the aspirations of the vast majority of the people there. The government cannot but be greatly concerned at the developments in East Pakistan."

He said that India had "hoped that democratic evolution in Pakistan would follow its natural course and that the elected representatives would prepare a constitution reflecting the urges of the vast majority of the people expressed through the election in December last year.

PARIS, March 28 (AP) .- Paris Prefect Maurice Doublet yesterday denied that he made any value judgment on New York after his recent U.S. visit.

Mr. Doublet was quoted after a speech at an Anglo-American Press Cluh luncheon Friday as saying he rated San Francisco at the top of the list for livability and urban planning, while placing New York with its "insufferabie" subway at the bottom.

A statement from Mr. Doublet's office yesterday said that "at no time during his speech, or in response to questions, did Maurice Doublet say what he is quoted as saying, nor did he go into the least value judgment on the conditions of life in New York."
"On the contrary," the state-ment said, "he tried to render homage to the warm welcome that he received from the wide variety of public and private personalities that he met in New York."

Transportation Aide Closing Project Office

By Rudy Abramson WASHINGTON, March 28.-Government and industry officiais have conceded that efforts to get hanks to resurrect the U.S. supersonic transport program have failed.

While the hankers never gave SST program director William M. Magruder an official turndown on his plea for help, they offered no hope. A spokesman for Mr. Magruder said Priday: "I think we can forget it."

Spokesmen for Boeing Co. prime contractor on the SST airframe, and General Electric, developer of the SST engines, said that they saw no chance of an industry consortium finding the $400 million and more necessary to finish building the two prototype planes being abandoned by the government.

Edward G. Uhl, president of Fairchild-Hiller, one of the major SST subcontractors, made personal contacts with banks in efforts to find a way for private enterprise to continue the proj-

However, a spokesman for the company said that there was no chance of rescuing the project before government funding rons out Tuesday night and development teams are disbanded.

Mr. Magruder told the Senate Appropriations Committee last week before the 51-46 defeat Wednesday that it would take years to put an SST development team hack together again once it was disbanded.

As contractors prepared to lay off SST workers, Mr. Megruder spent the day Friday searching for new Department of Transportatioo assignments for his own

Private Funds Tve Done Many Ridiculous For SST Fails Things,' George-Brown Writes

LONDON, March 28 (UPI),-Lord George-Brown, former foreign secretary, deputy leader of the Labor party and one of the most controversial figures in British politics, said today he had done "a good many quite ridicu-lous things in my life" but people respected him because he stuck by his convictions.

The lord, known as George-Brown before he was named a peer following his defeat in last June's election, published his memoirs today and took off outspokenly after former Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Labor party tactics in the last election and his decision to resign from the cabinet in 1968.

"I've done a good many quite ridiculous things in my life," he sald, "and yet, as I go about the country, I find that my standing-and I say this without selfsatisfaction or conceit—remains pretty high."

Passionate Convictions

The reason, he says in his book, "In My Way," is because "people say. 'He didn't mind leaving the bloody government, he doesn't mind getting kicked out of Parliament, just surviving isn't the be-all and end-all of existence"." "If my own life proves anything, it proves that people still respond to convictions passionately held," Lord George-Brown said he fought Mr. Wilson for the leadership of the Labor party in 1963 after the death of Hugh Gaitskell because "I considered that a victory for Wilson would in the long run be disastrous for Labor. "And the events of the general election of 1970 have not exactly changed that view," he said in reference to the Conservative party victory in June. Election Date Criticized

"One must assume that it is true that the prime minister did ask his colleagues and that unanimously they encouraged him to go to the country," he said stressing that had he been asked "I should have argued very strongly against a June election."

The campaign was dogged by complacency, he said, "We misled ourselves. The declsion had been taken to fight a cool, low-keyed campaign and we did nothing to show that we had

It's Never That Simple

"We've taken over," said a West Pakistani army officer to the foreign press in Dacca, "It's as simple as that." It was about all the correspondents were told before they were shipped ont of East Pakistan, and as is so often the case with military communiqués, it was deceptive. Civil war is never

Under the news blackout, the course of events in East Pakistan is completely obscure. Whether it is a bloody war or a brief series of skirmishes, followed by enforced tranquility, depends on whether the Indian news services or the Pakistani government is to be believed. And, under the circumstances, there is little reason to favor one source of information (or misinformation) over the other. But in any event, the attempts to resolve the dispute between East and West Pakistan through statesmanship have failed and the outcome has been left to brute strength.

West Pakistan has a lot of that. It was long a chief dependence of the British for Indian auxiliaries; it has military traditions. arms, and a well-trained officer corps. Bnt it is also half a continent away from the scene of action and is confronted with a people with whom it has only a religion and a few decades of joint administration in common. Moreover, India obviously favors East Pakistan, and India is much closer to the trouble than the base of President Yahya Khan's power.

This last aspect of the question has its own complexities. An independent Bangla Desh-Bengal Nation, the name the East Pakistani separatists give their hoped-for country-would exert its own attraction for the turbulent Bengalis of India, and might form another of the centrifugal forces operating on that harried land. It is, therefore, a moot question whether the division of Pakistan would be a net gain for India.

Meanwhile, whether or not the West Pakistanis succeed in re-imposing military government on East Pakistan, the future for both is bound to be troubled. Independence would not solve, of itself, the accumulation of economic problems afflicting East Pakistan; maintenance of official national sovereignty would not, of itself, mean a genuine union of the two parts of Pakistan.

The great storm that swept ont of the Bay of Bengal and killed its hundreds of thousands in East Pakistan is, clearly, still reaping its toll. That tragedy, with its aftermath of bitterness against West Pakistan for failing-or so many have alleged-to bring prompt and sufficient aid to the afflicted East, precipitated the present deadly chain of events. And how far that chain will extend, whether it will stir the unruly Pathans of the northwest, the Bengalis of India, the whole of the sub-continent and its neighbors, is still to be revealed. For nationalism, the fragmented nationalism that is so prominent and so disruptive in the world today, can whip up more deadly storms than all the winds and the waves in nature's

French Elections: A Draw

The two-round French municipal elections have reconfirmed the political division in France between a Gaullist majority in the central government in Paris and opposition predominance in the provinces.

After thirteen years of power and patronage, alded for the decade before his death by General De Gaulle's charisma, the Gaullists clearly have taken political root only to a limited extent at the local and regional level, where the traditional parties remain entrenched.

Alliances with some parties of the center and center-right, two of which are locked into the government coalition in Paris, enabled General De Gaulle's followers to claim widening influence. But the influence, such as it is, is exercised through other parties and their voters, not the Gaullist machine. The real facts are that the Gaullists themselves made only limited gains, as did the left-mainly where Socialists and Communists combined. Centrists lost to both. Shifts in the voting pattern were few. Incumbents of all parties did better than their challengers. Only about 30 of the 193 largest cities changed hands.

Failure to extend their victories significantly into the local scene suggests that the elections of 1968-69 may prove to be the Gaullist high-water mark. In this month's first electoral test of the Pompidou era, the opposition has shown that it holds solid bases in the provinces for a comeback. By voting Gaullists to power in Paris and anti-Gaullists in the provinces, France in effect has kept its options open.

Tito on Piazza Venezia

For anyone who remembers how close to war the Trieste dispute led Yugoslavia and Italy twenty years ago, the spectacle was hard to credit. Here was President Tito of Yngosiavia receiving the keys of the city from the mayor of Rome at the Colosseum then moving on to Piazza Venezia to draw polite cheers from Italians as he placed a wreath at the tomb of Italy's Unknown Soldier.

It is true that the spiritual heirs of Benito Mussolinl had put up posters protesting Marshai Tito's visit and bombs were exploded in northern Italy; but no one was hurt and it seemed clear that most Italians were unwilling to be provoked anew by a boundary dispute they regard as baving been resolved with finality in 1954.

In his airport welcome, President Saragat called Marshal Tito "a statesman of highest prestige in the world." But the 78-year-old Yugoslav leader's response was more to the point. He hailed today's growing ties between Italy and Yugoslavia as "an example to show how not only fruitful economic relations but also fruitful political relations can be established between two countries with different systems."

Either leader might have added the most pertinent point of all: those flourishing relations demonstrate that with patlence and goodwill it is possible in this imperfect world to resolve to mutual satisfaction a problem that seems to be not only intractable but to carry within it the seeds of a third wurld war. The symbolic significance of President Tito at the Victor Emmanuel monument should not be lost on cynical statesmen and weary diplomats.

Civil War in Pakistan

The country which was conjured into being as an exercise in political adroitness in 1947, is falling apart amid carnage. There is a grim historical consistency in this. For the present at least, the affluent white nations have moved into a period of stability. It is uneasy and threatened stability, no doubt, but it exists. The brunt of the historical process is now borne by the colored peoples.

Perhaps out of the present convulsion, a more workable political structure in the Indian sub-continent will be born. Whatever happens, the old Pakistan is dead. The rulers are trying to deny that fact by arms, but the attempt cannot be other than tragic

The American SST

The British government should ponder the consequences for the Anglo-French Concorde -not just because the Americans are now less likely than ever to let it land at their airports, but because the revolt against aerospace priorities is by no means confined to the United States. Faced with airline findings that Concorde will lose money to fly as well as to build. the government should be ready to abandon it on economic grounds But it continues the development program, costing a million pounds a week, as a political card in the Common Market entry game. This is extremely foolish. Better come clean on Concorde now than invite public anger when it is realized that Britain's share of the £1,000 million project has been added to the Common Market fee.

From the Left

In the unlikely event that Allende contains these tendencies in the effort to adhere to his promise of orderly change, he will face more trouble than he can handle on his own left. More-over, the large and disciplined Communist party is not going to be pushed around by anyone.

The leader of this party, largest in the Western Hemisphere. most experienced, best led and most faithful to Moscow, is Senator Corvalan, who is now in the Soviet Union. Corvalan clearly wants things to go his own way, which is the way of the Kremlin, and doesn't intend to be deflected by either Allende or the Gue-

But intimations have recently been received that, determined not to be outflanked on the left by Maoists and Guevarists, the U.S.S.R. is now whispering in Corvalan's ear that be, too, had better start beating a louder Marxist drum.

So Allende is being pushed left faster than is practical and fast-er in all probability than he would like, although he has been consistently Marxist all his life. He is making many pledges to keep internal and external relationships in order but before too long these will appear harder and harder to apply.

Boomerang

Thus it is almost certain his promise of increased mining and agricultural output will boomerang. There is too much chaos and despite workers' guarantees to step up production there is a shortage of competent technicians. Indeed, some pessimists foresee gasoline and possibly even

Italian Police Probe Left, Right Plotters

ROME, March 28 (NYT).-The police are investigating what appear to be networks of ultra-leftist terrorists in various parts of Italy. At the same time, comic-opera aspects are beginning to come out of a judicial inquiry into what is described as a neo-Fascist plot.

A robbery and murder in Genoa Friday put detectives on the track of a ring of self-styled Maoists who were operating clandestine radio stations, stockpilling arms and explosives and studying urban guerrilla techniques.

Earlier last week the Milan police seized weapons and bomb components traced to an ultraleftist underground group, Red Brigades, that had claimed responsibility for a series of blasts and other sabotage that extensively damaged the Pirelli rubber company and other indus-

"In this atmosphere the foolisbly ambitious designs for a coup d'état by an arteriosclerotic ultra-rightists become a sensational event," the minister said,

Kazafuy and Jalloud, Libya's Remarkable 1-2 Combination Punch

By William Tuohy

TRIPOLI, Libya.—Amid a bevy of chauffeur-driven llmousines dropping off Arab govern-ment ministers at the oil con-ference here, a tiny, beige Volkswagen skittered up to the curb, and a slender, young man stepped briskly out.

Maj. Abdul Salam Jalloud, who likes to tool around Tripoli in his own car, is no man to stand on pomp and ceremony. but nobody in Libya doubts his position and authority.

For at 27, the intense, dynamic Maj. Jalloud is the second most powerful man in Libya, and he is currently masterminding the oil negotiations expected to ex-tract hundreds of millions of more dollars out of the blg Western petroleum companies.

As deputy premier, Maj. Jalloud is the alter ego of Libya's 29-year-old premier, Col. Mohamer Kazafuy, and if the free-wheeling, widely-traveled Col. Kazafuy is Libya's "Mr. Outside," Maj. Jallond is "Mr. Inside."

As the man in charge of Libya's development program, Maj. Jalloud has the most to say about the spending of the country's enormous oil revenues. Libya currently has almost $2 billion in hard currency in U.S. and British hanks, and the money is accumulating at the staggering rate of nearly $4 million a day.

Learning the Business

While the impetuous, emotional Col. Kazafuy barnstorms around the Arab world futilely trying to drum up interest in his plan to forge a military force to demolish Israel, Maj. Jalloud stays home and minds the store. learning the nuts and bolts of the economy, and slowly but surely developing his skills as a crackerjack negotiator with foreign governments and the Western oil companies. Working a -16-to-20-hour day, Maj. Jailoud and Col. Kazafuy both have played a key role in evacuating U.S. troops from Ll-byan bases, expelling Italian residents, dealing with Britain over a financial settlement on previous military arms commitments, and successfully pressuring the oll companies to pay Libya more royalties and taxes.

"This is really a remarkable record for a couple of young men who less than two years ago were only platoon commandere in a fourth-rate army," commented a senior diplomat liere.

There have been recurring ru-mors that Col. Kazafuy and Maj. Jalloud do not get along, but most knowledgeable observers here believe that so far there has been no evidence to substantiate the

Complement Each Other

"In a very real sense," says a Libyan affairs analyst here, "Kagafuy and Jalloud complement each other. Further, the 12-man revolutionary junta seems to have held together surprisingly well."

As the foremost member of the one-two punch in Libyan affairs. Col. Kazafuy is the man with all the charisma: He is tall. handsome, articulate, a spellbinding speaker, Idealistic, puritanical, and a natural leader who, as far as anyone can tell, is still the motivating force of the Revolutionary Command Council.

Maj. Jalloud. by contrast, is intense, reserved. not given to public speechmaking, pragmatic, and prepared to attempt to master the mundane tasks of running a country on a day-today basis, and planning for Libya's future.

While Col. Kazafuy lias instituted national prohibition, Maj. Jalloud is known to take a drink, and is said to relish the company of women on his trips to Londoo and Paris.

Both men have taken second wives, a custom that hearkens hack to Islamic tradition, but has gone out of fashion in the revolutionary Arab countries. Col. Kazafuy recently disappeared from sight for 2 1 2 weeks. and the diplomatic community ie ahuzz with rumors about where

Official Explanation

The government officially said he was visiting rural areas, hut with the absence of pictures and news reports that would normally accompany such a trip. No emhassy here places much credence in this explanation.

Whether Col. Kazafuy was heing treated for an aliment in Cairo, as the most prevailing view has it, or whether his absence portends some shakeup in Revolutionary Command Council is still an open ques-

But it is considered significant that Col. Kazafuy was not around during the beginning of the oil negotiations with the Western companies, and that Maj. Jalloud was in full charge nf these most crucial talks. Both the colonel and the majer agree that Libys under King Idriss, whom they overthrew on Sept. 1, 1969, did not receive its fair share of compensation from

Thus, they are determined to pressure every available penny out of the big companies in the current talks, and their hardnosed approach may enrich Libva's treasury by as much as $660 million a year.

the oil companies.

They also believe that Libya's oil reserves are likely to run out in 25 years time, therefore government sources say they are determined to establish a viable alternative economic base for the

Agricultural Projects

Toward that end, 25 percent of the budget of some $480 million a year has been earmarked for agricultural projects, since fourfifths of the Libyans are farmers

But when it comes to spending the astronomical eums of money in the Libyan treasury, Col. Kazafuy, and Maj. Jalloud are very tight men with a Libyan

"They examine every single contrect." says one diplomatic observer here. 'Ridiculously small amounts of money must be approved hy members of the Revolutionary Command Coun-Sometimes they take the cheapest contracts looking for bergains, when it would probably be in their interest to spend more and get a better contractor.

"One reason that they appear to be so stingy is that they be-lieve that one of the key reasons for the revolution was to stop wasting Libya's money."

Another reason that the Libyan leaders are closs with their funds is that Col. Kazafuy. Maj. Jalloud and the other faceless members of the council ara all from poor Tripolitanian families.

Col. Kazafuv and Mai. Jalloud were both educated at rural secondary echools and then en-

As young officers, Col Kazafuy studied in Britain while Maj. Jallond attended U.S. military courses at Lackland Air Forca Base, Texas and Fort Belvoir,

Thus both officers speak English well, though they prefer to converse in Arabic, partly for reasons of national pride, and partly, it is said, to have more time to think about responses when negotiating with foreign-

Both men were strongly in-fluenced by Egypt's late president Gamal Abdel Nasser, particularly Col. Kazafuy.

Night after night, he would listen to the stirring rhetoric broadcast over Cairo radio, and, difficult time equating words with deeds in the Arab world. "Kazafuy is a man who says exactly what he thinks," says one observer here. "He etill can't get used to the idea that some Arab leaders preach one thing, but act quite differently." Thus the Syrians and Iraqis speak heatedly of attacking Is-rael, but in the crunch do not provide troops to fight.

More Sophisticated

Maj. Jalloud is more sophisticated, and observers say that after a token half-hour lecture on the iniquity of world Zionism, he gets down to the business at hand, while Col. Kazafuv may rant for hours on the subject.

Because of his strict Islamic conservatism, Col. Kazatuy has a strong revulsion toward Commu-nism, and though the Libyaus have reportedly taken delivery of some arms from the Soviet Union, it has been a cash-on-the-barrel-head deal and Russian influence in Libya is thin.

Similarly, Col. Kazafuy and
Maj. Jalloud have recently tossed out of the country Palestinians belonging to the Marxist-Lenin-ist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Thus political movements tinged with Marxism or Communism have far to go to gain any toehold in Libys. And the political philosophy of the regime, therefore, is a curious mixture of Arab revolutionary slogans streaked

So the huge cash surplus con-tinues to accumulate in Libys. Each Thursday, members of the Central Bank gather to decide how to reinvest the millions of dollars invested in short-term

For their part, Col. Kasafuy and especially Maj. Jalloud are fre-netically active. Recently, negotiating with the oil companies, Maj. Jalloud threw a proffered contract down on the floor to amphasize his dissatisfaction with it. But whether this was out of anger, exhaustion, or simply a

The Anti-Strike Bill as a Tory Symbol

By John M. Lee

LONDON (NYT). - Amid the most extraordinary scenes in recent parliamentary history, the government's Industrial Relations Bill to curb damaging wildcat strikes passed the House of Commons last week. The bill, by far the government's most important initiative, has become symbol of Conservative change in Britain.

When it was in office the Labor party proposed a similar bill, only to withdraw hefore the onslaught of unionists, who contribute 50 percent of the party's funds. When the Tories proposed the same thing, the Laborites engaged in obstructionist parliamentary tactics, forcing huned votes. # Despite Occasional Slumps, Market's Rise Bears Out Nixon's Prophecy of April, 1970

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, March 28 (NYT).

Exactly 11 months ago, when the stock market was deep in the doldrums and still headed toward its 1870 nadir, President Nixon met with a group of Wali Street leaders to assess the gloomy state of the financial markets and the rampant inflation that was troubling them so much.

Out of the meeting came some confident reassurances that the economy was sound, that progress was heing made in the effort to smother inflation and that the securities markets were basically healthy. No promises wero announced of any new initiatives to bolster investor confidence, but the President optimistically remarked:

Frankly, if I had any money, I'd be buying stocks right now." A month later, the market reached the bottom of its 18month tailspin, with the Dow Jones Industrial Stock Average touching a seven and one-half-year low at 631 as investors continued to harbor double about the economy and concern over the Cambodian adventure.

Now, almost one year later, the President appears to be a prophet of considerable prescience. The economy is strong-albeit not so vigorous as Washington would iike-and inflation seeems to be coming under control. The interest-rato structure has undergone a fantastic downward restructuring. International shocks are being weathered with greater calm. And the stock market is vibrant and markedly elevated.

Desplie a small downturn last week, the market is nearing tho end of the first quarter with a gain of some 65 points in the Dow average to slightly above the 900

However, there has beeen a much more spectacular rise in the market sinca the Presideot's day he spoke, the Dow average employment, apparently, are still the nation, which had been rather stood at 724.33. His now-famous keeping public psychology wrap-flat early this year, showed a gain quotation looked rather pathetic a month later when the average sank almost 100 points, but it has since climbed about 175 points, or almost 25 percent. The npsurge from the 1970 low last May has been about 43 percent.

If an investor had heeded the President's Rdvice last April 28 and put money into a representative group of ten blue-chip and secondary stocks, he would have fared just as well as the Dow average. Hero is what happened to a sample of ten stocks over the 11-month span:

Amex and Over-Counter

NEW YORK, March 29 (NYT).-Profit-taking plus some disappointing economic and Laos news helped depress the majority of Issues traded on the American Stock Exchange and on the overthe-counter market last week.

Prices in both markets declined during the first four trading days, although most of the losses were comparatively slight. A late rally on Thursday pared some of the earlier declines considerably and, on Friday, prices mostly advanced.

Brokers said the market was weakened by the sluggish pace of the economic recovery and government and private forecasts that the robound won't be as fast as some predictions.

Brokers also pointed out that concern about the withdrawal from Laos of Saigon'e forces was another restraining market in-

The weaker performance of the market was reflected by tha exchange's price judex which finished on Friday at 26.04, down 0.10 for the week. Turnover fell to 23,561,670 shares from 30,395,885 in the preceding week.

The warrants of Gulf & Western rose 11.2 to 105/8 as the most actively traded issue. The second most heavily traded stock, the new warrants of National General, fell 3/8 to 9 1/8.

The over-the-counter market also lost ground. The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industrial issues foll 2.69, to 434.90. Among the weaker issues were American Express, which dropped 3, and Tampax, which fell 2 1.2. The sale, which should bring the company, a subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., more than $30 million, is the first settlement with a major American investor growing cut of Chile's policy of nationalizing all basic mining re-sources, large industries and private banks.

The major problem lies in the large copper mines, where U.S. companies, particularly Anaconda, Kennecott and the Cerro Corp., have investments of about $700 million. Mr. Allende has sent a constitutional amendment to Congress permitting nationalization

The Bethlehem settlement, which has not been publicly ancounced since the contract was signed Monday, is a forced sale. The government had threatened to expropriate the company's Romeral and El Tofo mining con-

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

The textbook advice, based on the scoring table, is to bid a grand slam that has two chances in three of success, and a small slam that has a 50-50 chance. But in real life, before the dummy appears, it is seldom possible to estimate one's prospects exactly. This is illustrated by the diagramed deal.

North's opening bid of two diamonds was a weak two-bid, indicating a strong six-card suit and little else. South embarked on a series of probing bids, aimed at determining the right level and the right denomination for a slam contract.

The two no-trump response sked North to describe his asked hand further, and three, clubs then indicated a high club honor and a better-than-average weak two. Three hearts was natural, and the diamond rebid denied any support for hearts. Blackwood then revealed that North held one ace and two kings, at which point South took the plunge into seven no-trump. The dummy in seven no-trump turned out to be about as bad as it could possibly be: only a singleton heart, and no diamond ten. The opening spade lead was won in the closed hand with the king, and the top hearts were cashed. When the jack failed to drop, South had to hope for a miracle in diamonds. He played the diamond jack and won with the bing in dummy when West covered with the queen. He returned to his hand with a club lead to the ace, led the diamond three and inspected West's play of the eight. Was it more likely that East had begun with a doubleton diamond ten or with two small diamonds? Unfortunately these two possibilities are exactly equal. Mathematics was no help. South nine from dummy for a sound, bridge reason that was nonmathematical

If West had begun with queeneight-six of diamonds he might not have chosen to cover with the queen. From his angle South might have jack-ten-small, in which case the play of the queen would help the declarer. But with queen-ten-eight West would cover automatically, so that bolding was more likely.

AT THE EDGE OF HISTORY

By William Irwin Thompson. Harper & Row. 180 pp.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

WILLIAM TRWIN THOMPSON is a barely over 30 cultural historian from California, with the mind of a scholiast and the imagination of a William Blake. He teaches at York University in Toronto, which is lucky for Canada. His only previous book was "The Imagination of an Insurrection: Dublin, Easter 1916," which I haven't read but intend to at once. He is an Irishman by descent, which, I assume means that he believes in the Little People. At least I choose to think that he believes in tha Little People, for without the ballast of such a cultural stereotype, I would have finished up Thompson's new book believing in the lost continent of Atlantis, the prophecies of Edgar Cayce, the meretriciousness of Darwin's the-ory of evolution, and the distinct possibility that the planet earth was populated from outer space. As a matter of embarrassing fact, I'm not sure that I don't believe all these things anyway, now that I've read "At the Edge of His-

Because in 180 pages of wellchosen words and ant allusions. Thompson surveys the contemporary American culture, brings us to a point that the likes of Lewis Mumford and Charles A Reich are still groping for, and then whizes off at right angles from the conventional wisdom of right, left and center politics on a flight of reasonable fancy that is a sheer delight to follow. All in 180 pages. Interesting ones, filled with interesting sentences, phrases, insights, dreams, acid, salt, originality.

Thompson begins his curious journey disarmingly. At first ordinary time and space are present in his narrative, as he travels back from Ireland to California, attends a seminar at the Esalen Institute, returns to a teaching post at MIT, heads north to Canada. But these are not travels with Charlie, listening to America. To be sure there are arresting observations on California (in the Los Angeles mega-lopolis, "the individual is no longer a novel, but a television set"); on blacks and whites ("The whites, exulting in the work ethic, always saw the black man as the pre-industrial past; it never oc-. curred to them that he could be the post-industrial future"); on America's relationship with Asia ("While we were busy conquering Asia with our bodies, it was winning in our minds").

And yes, Thompson gives us vivid impressions of jumping into one's skin at Esslen, and of the contrasting mindscape of man-agerial MIT. But he is using his travels to explore the extreme alternatives confronting America today. And Esalen and MIT are for rejecting hippiedom, yippiedom, the liberal managerial elite. and its violent radical alternative as viable courses for present commitment. By page 74, Thompson has fled to Canada, "the peaceable kingdom to which those weary of conflict go to escape the burden of national destiny," ar he has stepped outside of history.

Now we go into outst hashof Thompson's mind. From a analysis of John Marshall's class; ethnographic film, The Hunters Thompson constructs "a mand of the species specific form... human consciousness," enclos the four hibel types represen in Marshall's film: "Headm Hunter, Clown and Shaman then contrives a remarkable the ory of how these basic types greated and institutionalized? elaborated and institutionalized agricultural society, industry civilization, the corporate statement of the corporate statement and the impending scient planetary civilization." And is led to the conclusion that I the persisting struggle amorradical, liberal, conservative at reactionary mentalities, every is right and no one is right; these forces exist in a field, inte locked in the tragic dance of and that one must either choo a position or step outside of living

Thompson steps outside, an now we fly off toward the him landscape of the Yeatsian dread Using as his point of departs the Hudson Institute's and th American Academy of Arts an Sciences plastic visions of th year 2000 (and are they made to seem plastic in these pagesti Thompson hurtles to a point is lunar mindscape where history of myth and myth is history. (Call fornia again; Oedipa Maar's para hold glimpes of the Tryster System in Thomas Psychon, hamting nevells, "The Crying of Lot 49.")

And suddenly, although not im plausibly, Thompson is invoking the visions of Edgar Cayce; he correlating worldwide coincidence of primitive mythic accounts of the dehige and lost continents; he is arguing that the explosion of brain size and frontal development in pithecanthropus can not be explained by natural selection He is invoking Levi-Straus to suggest that primitive civilisations were more sophisticated than contemporary America. He is implying that science-liction writers like Arthur C. Clarke may be recalling the past rather than extrapolating the future. And he is saying with a nearly straight face that the hippie cuits of fly-ing saucers may contain more than your philosophy of Gress World Product, Herman Kahn My God, one begins to believe it! But does Thompson? One can't be sure: Although he's perfectly willing to be drummed out of the corps of respectable academicians—as Immanuel Velikovsky was for seriously proposing a .... cataclysmic theory of prehistory brained visionary. In any case : " ... "At the Edge of History" is a range of thrilling mind-expanding speculation that one follows like a meta physical whodunit. And when it begins to seem too convincing, one need only take refuge in the belief that the author has been talking with the Little People. Carried to Mr. Lehmann-Haupt is a New ≃ in to

Newcombe Beats Rosewall, Faces Ashe in Final

EVANSTON, Ill., March 28 (UPD .- American Arthur Ashs and Australian John Newcombe qualified yesterday for the finals of the $50,000 Sportsface international tennis tournament at Northwestern University.

Ashe swept by Tom Okker of Holland, 6-3, 8-4, in the first semifinal and Newcombe stopped fellow Australian Ken Rosewall, 7-8, 7-5, in the second semifinal. Newcomhe, top seeded in the tournament and at 26 ten years younger than his opponent, broke Rosewall's service in the seventh game of the 52-minute first set. He then needed a tie-breaker to take the second set.

N. Carolina Takes NIT In a Rout

Georgia Tech Is 84-66 Loser

By Sam Goldaper NEW YORK, March 28 (NYT). North Carolina, a basketball team with quickness, aggressive-ness and bench strength, won the 34th annual National Invitation tournament yesterday by overwhelming Georgia Tech, 84-68, at Madison Square Garden.

In the consolation game be-fore 18,134 fans, St. Bonaventure rallied for a 92-88 overtime victory against Duke.

North Carolina was at its best in the second half when Bill Chamberlain, the 8-foot-6-inch junior from Long Island Lutheran High School in Brookville, put on a one-man show that earned him the award as the tournament's most valuable plsyer.

Chamberlain scored 34 points, the game high, and wound up as the tournament's leading scorer with 87. Twenty-two of his points came in the second half when he hit on nine of ten shots, most of them layups.

The difference hetween the teams was evident at the start and the Yellow Jackets never had a chance. North Carolina, using its press.

opened with an g-0 lesd. Tech took a time-out and appeared to settle down and regain its poise. When Tommy Wilson and Bob Murphy, who scored 15 points each in the first half, started hitting, the Yellow Jackets came back from a 17-8 deficit to within 44-40 at half-time.

Pour In 7 Straight North Carolina began the second half with seven straight points and from there on Georgia Tech gradually cracked under the Tar Heel press and Chamberlain's scoring. In a span of two minutes ten seconds, the 21year-old Chamberlain scored ten straight points.

The Tar Heels showed their bench strengh when Lee Dedmon, 6-11, whose task it was to stop Rich Yunkus, one of the nation's leading scorers and the tournament pacesetter with 73 points going into the game, picked up his third foul with 13 minutes 11 seconds remaining in the first half and his fourth with 4:47 left.

Donn Johnstoo, 6-8, filled in for Dedmon and between them, they held Yunkus to ten points, his lowest total in three seasons. Yunkus finished with 815 points for the seasoo, a school record as Tech won 23 games and lost nine. The 23 victories also were a school

The Bonnie-Duke consolation game was the fourth overtime of the tournament, the second in which St. Benaventure had been involved in the last three days. The Bonnies were beaten by Georgia Tech in the semifinals Thursday in double overtime. The entire tournament, though, lacked an outstanding team with charisma, something it had always been lucky to come up with. North Carolina was easily the class of the field. MIAMI, March 28 (NYT).— Gary Player of South Africa and Bruce Crampton of Australia shared the lead after 54 holes in the $200,000 National Airlines open at 206 as the foreign golfers dominated the third round yes-

Crampton ended an erratic spurt, during which he was penalized twice for knocking balls into water hazards, by holing birdies at the last two greens for a 70 over the Country Club of Miami course. Player, who Lee Trevino says is the one to beat today, also stroked in a birdle at the last hole for a 70 that brought about the deadlock.

Beginning the round, six players had been tied after 36 holes. But the afternoon produced some of the most bizarre golf seen on the pro tour this year. Bruce Devlin of Australia led with two holes to go but theo was upset by bogeys at the 17th and 18th. He finished with a 70, tying Trevino, last year's winner, at 207.

Devlin contributed an unusual shot in playing from a lie against a tree at the 17th hole. He turned his back to the fairway, crouched over the ball, then hit it between his legs as though he were a football center snapping the ball

PARIS, March 23.-Wales powered its way to the Five-Nations Rugby Union championship yesterday by defeating France, 9-5, hefore 60,000 at Colombes Stadi-

The victory in the final game of the season gave Wales a 4-0 won-lost record in the tournament, good for eight points while France finished second with one victory, two ties and a loss for four points. A French victory would have given them a share of first and they started out strongly, taking a 5-0 lead in the first half on a try by Benoit Dauga and Pierre Villepreux's

But five minntes after France scored, halfback Gareth Edwards rounded off a 90-yard run by fullback John Williams for a Wales score.

Then, eleven minutes into the seconds half, Barry John kicked Wales into the lead with a penalty and 14 minutes later knifed through the French defense for a try.

The victory also gave Wales a grand slam, as It had previousdefeated England, Scotland and

Line Drive Fractures Skull Of Tiger Pitcher Coleman

Pitcher Joe Coleman of the De-troit Tigers suffered a fractured skull yesterday when he was struck in the head by a line drive in an exhibition baseball game against the St. Louis Cardinals. Coleman was hurt in the fourth inning of the game eventually won by Detroit, 11-7. The pitcher was hit by a liner above the right ear off the hat of Ted Simmons. He was taken to Bayfront Medical Center where the fracture was described as non-depressed. His condition was not thought to be serious, although he will be side-lined indefinitely.

The Tigers won the gams with a four-run rally in the ninth inning capped by Norm Cash's bases-loaded double.

The Washington Senators and Pittsburgh Pirates each pushed across an unearned run as a result of errors by opposing short-stops to score exhibition baseball victories yesterday.

The Pirates capitalized on ex-teammate Fred Patek's throwing error and nipped Kansas City, 1-0. Patek's error allowed Willie Stargell to reach second and he came around to score on Manny Sanguillen's infield hit and sacrifice fly by Bob Robertson. Luke Walker worked seven scoreless innings for the Pirates.

Byron Browne's home run in the last half of the ninth inning gave Philadelphia a 4-3 decision over Cincinnati. The Phillies had tied the game with single runs in the seventh and eighth; setting the stage for Browne.

Pat Kelly and Lee Maye ripped home runs and the Chicago White sox whipped a pick-up team of players from Boston, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, 43 Jim Perry permitted just two unearned runs in seven innings, pitching Minnesota to a 5-2 victory over Boston. # Feeling Clammy

WASHINGTON.—This is the strangest thing. Who would have thought that it could have barylene blue jays sitting in the barylene blue jays sitting in the w strangest thing. Who would have thought that it could have happened here? To us. Or, to be completely accurate about it, to the people who used to be us. If you want to be strictly technical about it,

I suppose we are D o w somebody different from those people we were. If, indeed, we can be said to be people at all... Ah, how inexpressible it all is... Perhaps if one started at the beginning ...

'Clamograss" it was called. miracle of bogus vegatation wrought in a test tube in a stinking town somewhere along the New Jersey Tumpike. It was called clamograss because it felt so clammy when you sat down on its brilliant June-green surface in a wet oold January. It felt clammy in the summer.

too, to insects, which stayed away from it. We liked that about clamograss. The insects hated it. What's more it stayed green all winter. None of the nuisance of real living grass, either, because, of course, clamograss was dead. Bright, June-green dead, all year round.

After the clamograss came the polyukasene trees. They cut down the hemlocks, the maples, the oaks, the elms and the horse ebestnuts all over the neighborhod, and installed these marvelously imitative trees of polyukasenc.

At about the same time they covered the flower beds with plastic tulips, geraniums, irises and such, which looked so much like the real thing that you couldn't tell they were plastic until you got within fifteen feet of them.

Well, when the birds and the bees joined the insects in Absentia people began complaining that synthetic landscaping left some-thing to be desired. Then they came out with marvelously realistic artificial bees and birds made of barylene, or some such thing.

Yes, we were truly living differently through the miracle of chemistry. No matter whether it was deepest winter or sweetest did with me-I mean the him I summer's day, we could always look out our windows and see the synthetic rubber yew, and the children swatting futilely at very lifelike imitation flies as mother trudged home with frozen chemieals for dinner.

Well, people were anly human, unfortunately. Soou they were spending immense aums to bore psychiatrists with tales of their unhappiness and the unhappiness of their children.

It took a while to perceive the root of the misery. How we hated to cancede the point. Still, the fact was there.... Progress had been ours because we had been willing to destroy anything around us that tried to live. Things that lived created problems. If it was grass, it turned brown in the winter; if a tree, it dropped leaves on you in the fall: if an insect, it sat around looking absolutely terrifying with no provocation at all; if a fly. it gat into the bedroom at night and kept you awake; if food, it refused to cooperate when you wanted to store it away for twelve Chemical substitutes for things that lived had done the trick. The first family in the neighborhood to replace themselves with the new miracle compound called "peopleoid" were the Robinsons. The rest of us waited and watched. Mrs. Robinson looked much too orange in her flesh tones and was rather clammy to the touch, according to some of the children who had touched her: Mr. Robinson would smile grotesquely for days at R time because the peopleoid repair men were very busy at that time and couldn't get around more than opce a week to service models which had a lot of bugs in them. Eventually, however, we all saw the economic advantage of switching to peopleoid, especially after mass production helped get the price down. Would you believe that I, for example, cost myself only a few dollars a week more than a color TV set? Don't think I don't spend a lot of time watching the color TV, either. It takes my mind off this clammy feeling I have all the time.

Also it keeps me from sitting around wondering what they ever used to call me. It really is the #### Madeleines, Everyone?

Down Where Swann Had His Way

By William A. Krauss

TLLERS.—The disputations question in this otherwise placid village in the Beauce, 121 kilometers southwest of Paris, is: Who's got the true cakes?

Tempest in a tea-room? Hėlas, oui. The issue is that well-known sponge-cake, the madeleine. Ever since Marcel Proust and his "Remembrance of Things Past" made the madeleine famous Illiers (called Combray in the novel, you will remember) has done a steady commerce in the succelent confection. As for this year's Proust centenary, which will be planned around his birthdate of July 10, 1871, it's believed locally that come July and the tourist crish, a patisserie's reputation for the unique authenticity of its madeleines would be worth plenty of dough—which doesn't mean just sieved flour and lemon rind.

Like a good girl's virtue at the Opéra-Comique, it would be a crowning glory—a distinction beyond price—to be identified in Illiers as that shop which was the true source of Marcel Proust's original madeleine, the exact sort of madeleine he consumed with his spot of tea. But since nobody knows exactly where the little Marcel bought his cakes, a number of candidates have ventured to stake discreet

Nobody should think that either M. Proust or the town of Illiers invented the madeleine; far from it. Culinary sages say the cake was probably devised at Commercy on the Meuse, near Nancy, don't ask how come, nobody knows. It seems to have surfaced at Versailles about 1730 as the favorite dunk of the dandies, but you can doubt this too. The only really hard fact is that Marcel Proust, recalling boyhood summers in Illiers, put the madeleine on the literary man

Readers of "Remembrance" will remember that the whole long. long novel started with a madeleine. The subtle taste of a madeleine crumb soaked in tea evoked Proust's elaborate vision of the past-identified as the Proust-Madeleina Phenomenon (Taste Stirs Memory Provoke Literature, or TSMPL).

Here yesterday a prospective customer said to Mme. Robert BeDoist, the jolly women who tends her husband's patisserie at Number 19 Place du Marché. 'It says in the window that you have the most true and authentic Protestian madeleines. Does that mean M. Proust, as a nipper, nipped in here to buy them? Through that very doorway?

"Ah, well", sald Mme, B., chearfully. "Who can say anything with absolute precision after almost 100 years? I observe that nobody is now alive who knew the little boy Marcel in the time when he may or may not have walked through the doorway you have so explicitly indicated. Additionally, must one not entertain the possibility that he may have sent a servant for his cakes?"

When agreement was accorded, Mme. Benoist said, "So that's settled", good-humoredly. "It remains only to declare that the Beneist madeleine, produced on the premises, is unparalleled, peerless, and nonpareil. Why? Because we make it with the purest butter, that's why. May I suggest a half-dozen?

Just down the hill from the Place du Marché (alternatively Place de l'Eglise, because the church is there all the time and the market only on Pridays)-just down the hill is the Leblanc bakery, which prominently and strategically displays its madeleines at the very corner of the Rue do Docteur-Proust. This makes it the very closest patisserie to the Amiot house—the maison de Tante Léonie—where little Marcel lodged during his holldays. Did little Marcel, in pursuit of madeleines, deliberately walk past this corner, this closest bakery, head averted? Or did he enter and buy here? It is a painful question,

Not that the Leblanc patisserie makes any heady pretensions they couldn't defend. Rather, with a certain calm elegance, they simply assert that they produce a madeleine of quality at a geographic point closest to the Amiot-Proust house. Which is true, Finally, the sheer

"... I raised to my lips a spoonful of the tea in which I had soaked a morsel of the cake."

matter of quality is also above disputing in three or four other patis-series of the town. Madeleine afticionados would surely find it uphill work to choose among them.

But doubtless there'll be ample business for everybody this coming summer. All the bookish pilgrims, both French and foreignthe proustien anglais, the American scholastic type, the culture-seeking Scandinavian—won't they all buy the literary cakes, the revered symbol? And for that matter, will they not also drop into the Hotel de l'Image in the Place du Marché for a glass of the old red? ("Rouge does more than Marcel can To justify 'Swann's Way' to man," said R Shropshire visitor.)

You can bet they will They will also scurry to visit the Amiot house at 4. Rue du Docteur-Proust, just down the arrow-straight street from Lehlane's patisserie, to see the Proust furnishings, the library, the odds and ends of association items. This rather stark house of Tante Leonie, restored some years ago by the Society of Priends of Marcel Proust, is open winter and spring only at 3 o'clock Sundays; in summer it may be visited any morning or afternoon.

As rewarding in Proust associations is the aforementioned lovely Place du Marché (or de l'Eglise) with its towering 11th-cum-14thcentury Church of St.-Jacques (St.-Hilaire, said Marcel Proust, thinly disguising), graced by a superb berceau of elaborately painted ceiling, characteristic of the Beauce. At the upper entrance of the Place, a decorative map of Illiers identifies all the soupenirs proustiens and suggests an itinerary, past the houses of Adrien Pronst and Uncle Amiot and Tante Léonie, and across the tranguil river Loir to Swann's Pré Catalan garden (remember?), where the Prousts and the Amiots picnicked in fine weather long ago.

Nothing has changed, really; it's all very much the same. Except for all the dead people, said Mme. Cevrero at the Hôtel de la Gare The people change, the town remains; and all the blessed summer long there will be six trains a day from Parls disgorging—not so?—the hordes of hungry Proustians to make Illiers's cash registers ring. Isn't that nice? Vive Marcel Proust, hein?
